Comments/Ideas/Notes worth Sharing:

- Mindtap from Milady's cosmetology training tracks how much time students are working on the site.
- Dermologica is allowing free classes and also keeping track and hours. Our contact at Dermologica is Kristina Smith and she is prompt.
- Pivotpoint Lab provides all the things you need, including worksheets, videos, textbook, tracks hours.
- SalonCentric offers live FB Training and lots of brands. They are also offering certifications for free. As long as students participate, they have to be active in the program to earn their hours. They can't just log on and walk away. Hours can be earned in a lot of different applications.
- Contact Pearson Vue for information about certifications and testing. They are still working, so you can get paperwork ready for when students are ready.

- Students' hour report for April does not have to be notarized, however, they still want report by April 15th
- Links for state licensing laws can be found on line. You can post them on your learning platform. Then you can show videos, ask students what the technician is doing wrong and have them find the correct state law and explain what law they are violating.
